

ADVISORY REGARDING SMOKE AND CARBON MONOXIDE ALARMS

1 When buying, selling, or renting residential property in Oregon, it is important to learn the laws pertaining to smoke and carbon monoxide alarms.
2 This Advisory Regarding Smoke and Carbon Monoxide Alarms (this "Advisory") provides notice of those laws and resources for additional information.
3 Alarms are required before most existing homes and manufactured dwellings can be sold, and in all newly constructed homes and many remodels.
4 Alarm type, installation location, power source, maintenance, testing, and replacement are controlled by local and state laws and rules, as well as
5 alarm manufacturers' instructions.
6 In rental properties, working alarms must be installed before they can be rented. State law describes the requirements for alarm information that
7 landlords must give tenants, and notices that tenants must give landlords. State law also governs testing intervals, responsibility for batteries, and 8 replacement of faulty units.
9 Most importantly, properly functioning alarms save lives. It is illegal to tamper with a working smoke or carbon monoxide alarm.
10 This Advisory is to raise awareness of the importance of alarms. Buyers and sellers need to do their due diligence to determine what the law requires
11 and whether the requirements have been met. Real estate licensees are not experts on these matters, and alarm laws change frequently. Get the
